On Thursday, July 15, 2021 the 9th ABEST21 online workshop "Assuring the Quality of Online Lectures" held with Dr. Nobuyuki ISAGAWA Graduate School of Management, Kyoto University, Japan and Dr. Suthasinee Susiva Graduate School of Commerce, Burapha University, Thailand as the speakers.

Professor Dr. Nobuyuki ISAGAWA shared with us the knowledge of how to conduct online class in Graduate School of Kyoto University, after a short introduction of the school. They make use of the online class management system called "PandA", and help students and lectures take online class. In addition, they increased the number of small class or one-to-one session so that students don't have to hesitate communication with lectures and other students. As the way to retain the quality of class, the school required lecturers to submit the class report in each class. In the report, lecturer described a target of class of the day, the situation of online class and the information of the class materials of the day. After the presentation from him, the workshop members discuss how they measure the outcome of online class.

After the wonderful self-introduction and introduction of her school, Dr. Suthasinee Susiva gave a presentation about the situation of equipment in COVID-19 pandemic, and the issues to be improved for assuring the quality of online education. They use the online education system such as Zoom and Google meets. In addition, they extend the educational opportunity with GSC Academy and Banpu Group. As the way to measure the quality of online class, the school conducted the questioner to their students, and they found that students are concerned about the class discussion via video conference system and the teaching method and so on. After the presentation, they discuss the two-way communication in the online class.

The 10th online workshop is going to be held on August 19, 2021.
